A champion brave, alert and strong....To aid the right, oppose the wrong.

Attracting Attention.

We give below an extract from an article in the Stockton Independent, and can assure all whom it may concern, that the statements with regard to the mineral resources of Utah, except perhaps in the item of gold, are entirely reliable. We believe that future results will bear out the confidence felt by all, who have means of knowing, that Utah stands among the very first of mineral producing regions. Our mines are already known to be co-extensive with the Territory itself and, so far as prospected, show a richness second to none of which we have any information.

Without the assistance of capital, however, the process of development must necessarily be very slow, but, from letters recently come to hand from parties in New York, we are in hopes that this stimulant will be soon applied and the productive qualities of our Rush Valley and other mines put to the working test. This is all that could be desired, for certain are we, that such test will demonstrate a value beyond even the present belief of their owners.

We learn that one claim in Bingham Canyon has been sold in New York and the "Quandary" and others, located in Rush Valley, if not already disposed of, are under contract to a company possessing ample means for the development of their rich resources. Confident in the unsurpassed value of these mines, taken in connection with the easy facilities for working them that, as soon as attention is attracted hither by something being actually done towards working them, thenceforth they will stand upon their own merits and need no assistance in attaining prominence. Therefore we should be glad to hear of further sales, which we expect at an early day. In this connection we may state that we were recently shown a sample of coarse gold dust found in Bingham Canyon and the deposit is believed to be extensive. Says the Independent:

We have received letters recently from Utah and New Mexico, written by parties from this city who have engaged extensively in prospecting for minerals in that country, and who tell us that both in gold and silver Utah and Western New Mexico are as rich as California and Nevada, but that their wealth has been systematically concealed by the Mormon policy. They look this way for capital and other aid. They are in a fair way to get all they want if Captain Trueworthy can successfully repeat his trip. But if the United States desires to make sure of the uninterrupted navigation of the Colorado and to develop the vast resources that lie along its waters from Utah to the Gulf of California, the Government must not allow France or any other European power to fasten upon Guaymas and the outlets of the Gulf. The nation that holds and fortifies Guaymas, La Paz, and controls Lower California and Sonora, at once controls the Colorado river and Arizona.

[SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION VEDETTE.]

Booth, the Assassin Shot and Harold captured.

New York, April 26th.

By the Columbia, from Havana the 25th: The intelligence of the assassination of President Lincoln caused much excitement, and cast a deep gloom over all the American residents.

Baltimore, April 26th.

The steamer Massachusetts, collided with the steamer Black Hawk, on the Potomac last night; the latter sunk in a few minutes. In the excitement, a number of soldiers on board of her became panic stricken, and losing control of themselves a number were drowned. The Massachusetts lay near the spot 'till daylight, picking up about 100 men. From the statement of the Captain in command of the troops, it appears that the loss of life, as near as can be ascertained, will not exceed fifty.

New York, April 26th.

Newbern dates of the 22d state that the city was draped in mourning and a meeting of the citizens was held on that day to give expression of public sorrow. The Standard, and Progress, Raleigh papers, conducted by their former proprietors, appeared in mourning, and say that Lincoln was the best friend the South had, and that the South suffers more in his death than the North.

The ratification of the constitutional amendment, abolishing slavery, is regarded as certain, and the desire to return to the Union seems general throughout the State.

Washington, April 26th.

To Dix: A dispatch just received from Grant, dated Raleigh, 10 a. m., 24th, says: I reached here this morning and delivered to Sherman a reply to his negotiations with Johnston. Word was immediately sent to Johnston terminating the truce, and information that civil matters could not be entertained in any convention between army commanders.

(Signed) STANTON.

New York, April 26th.

The Steamer Ariel from Panama 16th. Beyond the circulation of idle rumors of fresh revolutionary uprising and keeping the timid in suspense, nothing has occurred worthy of note.

From Central America, we learn the death of Carrera, President of Guatemala, was expected, and a crisis was expected to follow the event. Carrera, was President for life, with power to name his successor. He has named Gen. Corva, late Gov. of Chyemula, and it was thought Carrera's death would be a signal for Gen. Borois to renew his claims to the Presidential chair. The President of Honduras, had issued a degree of non-intercourse with Costa Rica, for affording Borois asylum.

Additional from Havana dates sent this noon.

The blockade runners Wren and Badger, arrived on the 23d, from Galveston, with cotton. Jno S. Williams, who was carrying 54,000 dollars State money from Goliad to Clinton, Texas, was robbed by a band of thieves.

The blockade runner Eliza Carthine, loaded with cotton, sunk on the Bar of Brazos River, drowning the Captain, mate and three others.

By the way of Matamoros, it was reported that Cortinas had declared against the empire and was preparing to attack Gen. Mejia, who is in Matamoros, with 4,000 or 5,000 men. Mejia is cut off from communication with the interior and he will either surrender or retreat; if he does the latter, he is lost, as Cortinas has from 6,000 to 7,000 troops.

New York, 26th.

The Tribune's special says: When the whole history of the plot for the assassination is made public, the world will be astonished at its enormity, as well as with our forbearance with our Canadian neighbors, who have constantly furnished a safe asylum to the most nefarious villains.

It is anticipated that the retreat of Jeff. Davis from Texas to Mexico, with the purpose of involving us in new difficulties, has been duly considered by the movements.

The Tribune's Army Potomac special of the 23d says: The 6th corps was put on the march this morning for Danville, in order to head that point, and guard the communication of the army under Sherman.

Halifax, 26th.

The Africa, from Liverpool 15th via Queenstown the 16th, with three days later dates. The steamer St. David, from Portland, arrived at Liverpool at 9 A. M. on the 14th. The steamship Australian, from New York, arrived off Cook Haven at 11 A. M. on the 14th.

The news of the fall of Richmond created intense excitement in England, but arrived too late to admit of the papers generally commenting upon it, and as most of the markets had closed from the 13th to the 17th, the effect of the news cannot be fully developed until they are open.

The London Daily News says: The army of Virginia, so long deemed invincible, the pride, the hope, the centre and the citadel of the Confederacy, has been not only beaten, but shattered, and the Davis government is now vagrant and fugitive. Richmond, which received it, and gave it for a time, a dignity which it could never have acquired while it remained among the cotton plantations, where it had its rise, was set on fire by its departing generals. That the Confederate army fought with all its old tenacity and clan, we cannot doubt, but has been broken up by men, as we have often been told, was the sweepings of the Northern cities. Davis began the war by declaring that he would carry it where food for the torch awaited the Southern armies, in populated cities; but the attempt to burn New York ended in nothing but an execution, while Davis set his borrowed capitol in flames and decamped.

Other papers are silent, as yet, upon the news. The Times has an article strongly condemning the conduct of Judge Smith, of Montreal, for his ill considered and dangerous charge, on the subject of the St. Albans raiders.

The London correspondent of the Provincial Press says: There is unpleasant whispering as to a desire of the King of the Belgians, who is still in England, to exercise an influence over the course to be taken by the British government in Mexican affairs. Earl Russell regrets the precipitancy with which he yielded to the Royal wish to recognize the pretended Mexican Empire, and fall it must, if not saved by European interposition, and that right early, and for this neither the Premier nor Foreign Secretary is prepared.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times says: The disturbances at Madrid were more serious than heretofore stated. On the evening of the 12th, an assemblage in the street was suddenly dispersed by a volley of musketry. The troops fired right and left, and several were killed and fifteen wounded. No provocation was given on the part of the people, and no proclamation had been issued to warn the people or forbid their moving about the streets.

Liverpool, 15th. The fall of Richmond is the universal topic of to-day. Friends of the North are greatly elated at Grant's successes and are strengthened in the conviction that the final triumph of the North is near.

The rebel loan declined six per cent, closing at 23 $\frac{1}{2}$ 25, while Federal securities exhibit a decided improvement.

Liverpool, April 16th.

The Globe says, the fall of Richmond leaves the confederates, threatened on every side. There is a tremendous price to pay for the luxury of pushing an army to Nashville and refusing until the 11th hour to free and arm the negroes.

Calcutta, April 6th.

There has been a serious disturbance on the Suez canal, between the Egyptian and Norwegian laborers.

War Department, Washington, April 27th.

J. Wilkes Booth and Harold, were chased from a swamp in St. Mary's county, Maryland, to Garret's farm, near Port Loyal, on the Rappahannock, by Col. Baker's force. The barn in which they took refuge was fired, and Booth was shot and killed, and Harold was captured. Booth's body and Harold are now here. (Signed) STANTON.

New York, 27th.

The Herald's Raleigh correspondent of the 19th says: At the second interview Johnston made inquiry as to what terms would be accorded to the members of the Confederate Government. Sherman refused to recognize the authority of any such government; but was prepared to treat with Johnston as an officer of the insurgent forces. A subsequent meeting was had, at which Breckenridge was recognized as a Major General; not as a rebel Secretary of War. At this conference Sherman permitted the introduction of objectionable propositions, which, it is said, were dictated by Jeff. Davis. Sherman heard of the President's assassination before negotiating, and communicated the intelligence to the rebels, who appeared to have the profoundest regret at the event.

Gen. Stoneman who reported at Greensboro was permitted to come through Johnston's lines to Raleigh. Johnston's army is probably thirty thousand strong and better supplied with field guns and horses than any army of the confederacy ever had. Many of the rank and file however, are not willing to await a formal surrender and are leaving for their homes.

The World's Raleigh correspondent, says, a Commission consisting of ex Gov. Graham, ex Gov. Swain, Surgeon Gen'l Warren and Col. Burr, were sent by Gov. Vance, to see what arrangement could be made with Sherman on the part of the State, for the cessation of hostilities and to ascertain what the status of the State Government and its officers under the new regime. The commission had the assent of General Hardee, to visit Sherman. They had an interview with Sherman, who gave them a protecting paper for the Governor and State officers, so long as no hostilities were shown by them, Sherman told them, he had no information as to how the status of the State Government was effected; that question didn't come within his province and that he didn't consider North Carolina out of the Union.

As the question of secession had not been submitted to the people, he would respect every man that was not an original secessionist, and treat him with every consideration; still he must march through the state in pursuit of Johnston, and the people must necessarily suffer by that march. Johnston's army was inferior to his, and every man slain in the future was an unnecessary sacrifice. Johnston and not himself would be responsible for this sacrifice and suffering entailed on the people of North Carolina. The civilized world would pronounce Johnston's course as inhuman and illegitimate.

Rochester, April 27th.

The funeral train arrived here at 3:20 a. m. Minute guns were fired and Newman's regimental band performed the funeral dirges. The 54th New York and first company of veterans reserve, hospital soldiers, and the battery attached to the 25th brigade, Union Blues, independent, were drawn up in line in the depot on the north side of the track, the Mayor and twenty-six of the Common Council, with other civil organizations. The bells of the city churches are being tolled, and as the train leaves the city, the multitude show marked signs of sorrow and respect. Thus far there has been no accident.

Batavia, N. Y., April 27th.

The remains of Abraham Lincoln arrived here at 5:18. Two thousand inhabitants were assembled at this place. During the time they remained here a choir of female and male voices sang a requiem. Bells were tolled and minute guns fired.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE

BY A RESIDENT OF UTAH.

ARTICLE 15.

During the existence of these difficulties between the Governor, the General and U. S. officers, a Mormon official made it his business to seek and obtain an interview with the imbecile old demagogue then occupying the Presidential Chair. This was granted him, he being a Democrat, and of the same political school as the then Administration. Assuming the title of General, and having been a Captain in the Mexican war, and a member of the California Legislature, he had a reputation that justified an audience with the Chief Executive of the nation. During the interview with the President, this self-styled General so effectually drew the wool over his eyes—so won him to the cause he represented—that the vacillating and weak-minded depository of the people's trust was so far imposed upon by his garrulous duplicity, that he not only confirmed the full and free pardon issued to the enemies of his country, but he curtailed the authority of General Johnston, and disapproved the zealous and loyal efforts of the Judiciary to arraign before the bar of Justice the vile criminals who had so wantonly and boastfully made a public parade of their treachery and rebellion.

The unasked-for pardon accorded to the rebels, for such they then were, being openly hostile to the Government and in arms against its military; the abridgment of General Johnston's authority; the reprimand implied in the disapproval of the loyal and praiseworthy zeal of the judiciary, formed a combination of unfortunate events that tended more to foster rebellious pride in the hearts of the hostile leaders than any chain of circumstances of their own creating could have possibly done. In the former case they were encouraged by the government they had defied, in the latter case they would have been still regarded as their demerits deserved, and been under the restraining power of a fear born of conscious wrong done and insult given to a superior authority, possessing the retributive power of that stern justice that rewards every man according to his deeds.

The result of these circumstances was the withdrawal of the United States military from Utah, the resignation of the Judiciary and that of the U. S. Marshal. Powerless to magnify their callings and honorably discharge their duties according to their oaths of office, they abandoned those offices; and the vacating their places furnished a much desired opportunity for their enemies, and one of which they were by no means slow to avail themselves, to give vent to the latent spirit they had long secretly indulged with a bitter malignity of feeling towards them. The cause that led to these resignations is so ably and succinctly set forth by one of them, and applies so accurately to the case of each of the others, that I here insert it, as contained in his letter of resignation:

"GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., August 1st, 1859."

To His Excellency James Buchanan, President of the United States: Sir—I hereby tender to your Excellency my resignation as United States Marshal of the Territory of Utah, to take effect from the 20th inst.

In tendering this, my resignation, I deem it to be my duty to warn you that the policy of your Administration has been fatal to Federal supremacy in Utah, and can only tend to build up, consolidate, and perpetuate the political and ecclesiastical power of Brigham Young and his successors.

The unasked, and to this day derided pardon extended to treason, has only tended to encourage traitors, and the presence of Federal troops crippled and humiliated by the instructions and restrictions imposed on them, serves only the purpose of enriching the coffers of the Mormon Church and of subverting the ends of Mormon policy.

The courts of the United States in this Territory, powerless to do good in dreadful mockery of justice, are compelled to lend the power and majesty of the law to subserve the evil designs of the very criminals they seek to punish. Impotent to protect innocence they encourage crime.

The Federal officers of the Territory, opposed and annoyed continually by those whose cordial support and co-operation could alone enable them effectually to sustain the dignity of the position which they occupy, are as forms without substance, shadows without reality.

Though willing to serve the administration from which I received my appointment, I cannot remain an officer of the Government, without the power to maintain its dignity.

I am, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

P. K. DORSON.

U. S. Marshal for Utah Territory." During the administration of Governor Cummings, things worked so favorably for the Church that there were but few incentives to the display of the innate rebellious tendency characteristic of Utah Mormonism. The Territory had for its nominal Governor, an appointee of the U. S. Executive, but its real Governor was Brigham Young. Dark deeds, deeds of blood and organized robbery, stain the history of Utah in these times. Men were wantonly murdered in the very streets of the capital, and the murderers rode unmolested away. Robberies were openly committed and the robbers went unpunished. If brought to trial before the Probate Court, acquittal was the certain result. But as these atrocities will be adverted to under another head, I now pass them by with the above casual reference.

THE REBEL PLOT.—We clip the following from the correspondence of the American Flag:

"Allow me to call your attention to the fact, apparently forgotten in the intense excitement and sorrow prevailing, that a few weeks since extracts from one of the Richmond papers, were published here, going to fix unquestionably on the rebel authorities the terrible responsibility for the fearful atrocities just committed in Washington. This article, to the best of my recollection, strongly advocated the assassination of our late beloved President before his inauguration, and stated that for the sum of $50,000, responsible parties had offered to carry the devilish design into execution."

Local Matters.

CAPT. M. G. LEWIS, A. A. General, U. S. Vol., on Gen. P. Edw. Connor's Staff, left in the Eastern coach, for Denver, on Monday, in company with Capt. Hempstead.

Capt. Lewis, is an old, tried and efficient officer. He was Capt. of Co. "I," 3d Inf., C. V., at the organization of that Regiment, and soon after the promotion of Col. (now General) Connor, received his appointment as A. A. General U. S. Vols. He has ever discharged his duties with credit to himself and with honor to the service. As an able officer, a social, agreeable gentleman and estimable friend, he is respected throughout the entire command. No officer could leave Camp Douglas whose departure could be more regretted by the large circle of friends left behind.

We are informed, by a private letter, that Company "C," 3d Batt. Inf., C. V., was to leave Camp Connor, Idaho, on Monday last and take up the line of march for this post. We shall be most happy to welcome our comrades home again. They will, no doubt, be glad to return; as self experience has made us know that the climate at Camp Connor is not genial, to say the least.

The following are the officers of Garrison Lodge, No. 65, I. O. G. T., for the ensuing term, elected on Tuesday evening last, viz: W. C. T., Fred. Livingston; W. V. T., Robert Murray; W. S., N. A. Gray; W. T., D. McNally; W. F. S., Daniel Maloney; W. M., J. Fulton; W. I. G., — Courtney; W. O. G., — Dusterburg.

LT. FRANCIS HONEYMAN, in command of three non-commissioned officers and thirty-six privates, is ordered by Gen. Connor to proceed to Denver by stage and report for duty at those Headquarters.

ANDOVER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY. —The present endowment of Andover Theological Seminary, including buildings and the various funds, amounts to $630,000. To carry out the proposed enlargement there will be needed $170,000 more, making a total endowment of $800,000.

PEARLS, a collection of choice

A HAPPY CONVERT.—A girl out West having professed religion, was so extremely happy that she was ever after heard singing at the top of her voice that old hymn: "The love of God is coming—coming down," etc. Nothing stopped her from singing the song. One day old "Jowler," the house dog, came in while she was singing, and helped himself to a piece of meat that was on the table. Polly, observing the stealthy movements of "Jowler," continued her singing thus: "If you don't go out I'll knock you down, Hallelujah, Hallelujah! You nasty, mean, low lop-eared bound, Oh, glory, Hallelujah!"

NOBLE SENTIMENT.—Condemn no man says John Wesley, for not thinking as you think. Let every one enjoy the full and free liberty of thinking for himself. Let every man use his own judgment, since every man must give an account of himself to God. Abhor every approach, in any kind of degree, in the spirit of persecution. If you cannot reason or persuade a man into the truth, never attempt to force him into it. If love will not compel him to come, leave him to God the judge of all.

APPROPRIATE.—The Cripple, an hospital paper published at Alexandria, has the following on a dead soldier:

Only a soldier,
Gone to his rest,
With the dear banner
Wrapped round his breast;
Only a private,
Left the stern wars
For a promotion
Among the bright stars!
